Synopsis

Poetry. Latino/Latina Studies. Whether in the heart of downtown Toronto, a bookstore in Boston, the courtyard of the Taj Mahalâ ”through the portals of cyberspaceâ ”on the banks of a Tampa river, or a journey through time to Georgetown, an old colonial capital of the British in South America, love circumscribes everything. But this book is no wide-eyed outpouring; it probes and questions concepts and beliefs, pokes fun at age, companions taken for granted, and the realization that, like a mannequin in a Manhattan storefront, love is "faceless and, almost, raceless." If love circumscribes everything, these poems show that everythingâ ”economics, politics, ambitions and exilesâ ”also circumscribes love.
